i do think we may need some qualified hands in the lab if some of these studies get funded. I've got something with Brett, we've got the ROAR, we've got AltEn, etc. Right now it's unclear who would be available to do that work. I think we need Alex/Matt doing near full-time development and data analysis. Then I need a full-time statistician/data scientist to do some of this qNTA stuff. I'm not sure where that leaves us for NTA lab support.
